GREETING TO BEARDSLEE

POPULAR ADMIRAL FETED

BY JAPANESE OFFICIALS

He Was With Perry When Japan's

Door Was Opened to the World

---Interesting Relics

Shown.

Tokyo, Dec. 1.—At the Suiyoken, Uyeno Park, Tokyo, many hundred prominent Japanese ladies and gentlemen, with a few foreigners, being invited by the reception committee, represented by Marquis and Marchioness Saigo, to meet Admiral Beardslee, late of the American Navy. Admiral Beardslee is a veteran officer who accompanied Perry forty-seven years ago on his memorable expedition to Japan, and the Japanese, ever hospitable to foreigners who take an interest in the country, have been "honoring" him very extensively.

The gathering commenced with speeches, and ended with a feast. A select party of Japanese and foreigners, with the guest of the afternoon, was assembled on the verandah of the hotel, from which speaking took place.

Dr. Kato, whose remarks were interpreted by Mr. Takahashi, spoke, expressing his pleasure at meeting the Admiral, and adding that at the time the latter first visited Japan, the country had begun to realize the importance of intercourse with the western world.

While a good many people were of opinion that the foreigner must be fought with his own weapons and Japan's subsequent progress had been the outcome of the growth of that feeling.

Amiral Beardslee, in a few well selected sentences, expressed his sense of the hearty welcome extended him.

He declined all idea that the reception was due to his own personal merits, but recognized that it was accorded him as the representative of his nation. He remarked on the enormous changes which had taken place since his first visit to the country—everything had been changed. When he came up the Bay with Perry at the head of the Commodore's ship was his pennant, showing a single large white star in a blue ground, and he was happy to think that that star was the symbol of the light which had swept away all the clouds in which the old Japan had been enveloped, and had been the harbinger of a bright dawn of enlightenment. He remarked on the universality of the English language in Japan, and expressed the opinion that the Japanese were rapidly becoming an English-speaking people as well as Japanese-speaking people.

Cheers were then given for the Admiral.

New Insulators.

It has been proposed recently in Germany to install a heating circuit in connection with insulators on very high tension power transmission lines.

These insulators are generally made of porcelain, about the size and shape of an ordinary derby hat. When their temperature becomes lower than that of the surrounding air, under certain conditions of humidity, a film of moisture forms on their surface, giving rise to a slight leak, which may start a dangerous and destructive arc. The proposed improvement consists of a coil of high resistance wire, imbedded in or wrapped around the insulator, through which a small current may be sent at times when the conditions favor the formation of moisture. An elevation of temperature of two or three degrees is sufficient to keep the insula-tors dry, and this may be had with a very slight expenditure of current.

"I think so," he declares he can't play a good game of checkers without his golf clothes on."—Chicago Record.
